About the Course

A practical pathway into professional floristry

SFL20125 Certificate II in Floristry reflects the role of floristry assistants who use a defined and limited range of basic floristry technical skills to assemble fundamental floristry products to pre-determined designs and job specifications. These individuals are involved in mainly routine and repetitive tasks using limited practical skills and basic floristry industry knowledge. They work under direct supervision.

QUALIFICATION	SFL20125 Certificate II in Floristry (Assistant)

Why The Flower School?

Where craftsmanship meets creativity

For over two decades, The Flower School has helped aspiring florists build the confidence, creativity and practical skills required to thrive within the floral industry. Combining hands-on training, industry engagement and a supportive learning environment, we are passionate about helping students turn their love of flowers into rewarding careers.

Rather than simply teaching floristry techniques, we immerse students in the realities of the floral industry through practical training, industry exposure and experiences designed to prepare them for the workplace.

An Established Name in Floristry Education

The Flower School has built a reputation as one of Australia's most respected independent floristry training providers. Our graduates have gone on to establish their own businesses, work within leading floristry studios and pursue successful careers across weddings, events, retail floristry and floral styling.

Connected To Industry

We maintain strong relationships with florists, wholesalers and industry professionals, creating opportunities for students to gain valuable insight into the realities of working within the floral industry. Through wholesale market visits, guest speakers, networking opportunities and industry engagement, students are exposed to the profession beyond the classroom and develop a deeper understanding of what it takes to build a successful career in floristry.

Training That Reflects Today's Industry

Floristry is constantly evolving, and so are we.

Our team remains actively involved in private events, weddings, installations and industry projects, ensuring students are exposed to contemporary techniques, emerging trends and current industry expectations.

This connection to the industry means students learn skills that are relevant, practical and reflective of today's floral landscape.

Small Classes. Personalised Support.

We believe creativity flourishes when students feel supported, encouraged and confident to explore their own style.

With small class sizes and personalised guidance, students receive individual feedback and mentorship throughout their training, helping them build both technical expertise and creative confidence.

More Than A Place To Study

At The Flower School, you're joining a creative community.

Many students describe their time with us as one of the most inspiring and rewarding experiences of their lives, forming friendships, industry connections and professional networks that continue long after graduation.
